

The Derelict House

She ran into the house as excited as a child, but not for long. Inside the house, there was a sea of cobwebs. The cobwebs were as white as a ghost and the spiders were as black as coal. Of course, she was terrified as the bone chilling eight legged creatures crept around the house. She was here a few hours ago.

She forgot her purse there and Agnes fell into a deep hole. It was as dark as a basement at midnight. Of course, she continued her way. She saw a figure. Agnes thought back to why she went to this place a few hours ago?

Agnes was still concerned about the shadow but then she saw a hand over the chair. She knew it was the shadow. It had her purse and it disappeared. She ran as fast as thunder, Agnes knew this would mean a midnight escapade. So here she was, in the darkness.

Agnes really needed her purse for money for her family. Agnes saw her purse and ran away.

She was looking for the exit but can't find it. She felt a hand touch her shoulder. Her heart thudded and her mind ablaze with questions. Who is it? Agnes knew she had to get out of here. If she didn't she would be trapped with this monster.

She is very scared, she just wanted to get her purse back and now she got herself into this mess. As well as the spiders crawl the house. Agnes is very scared. She doesn't know what to do and really wants out. She has her purse but can't get out. Suddenly she found the hole she fell in. The exit is right here, she is saved!

By Daniel