A Guide to Hecklegirth Nursery Blog

We hope that our blog will provide an additional insight into the life of the Nursery and will give you opportunities to communicate with us in a different and exciting way.

The blog address is

<https://blogs.glowscotland.org.uk/dg/HecklegirthNursery/>

Alternatively you can put a search in Google for Hecklegirth Nursery.

What is in the blog?

The blog contains pages such as “Dates for Your Diary” which you can click on for up-to-date information. We have also provided some useful links, a section for your suggestions and access to previous posts. To return to the opening page, simply click on “Hecklegirth Nursery” at the top of the page where you will see the latest posts.

Will my child appear on the blog?

Children’s photos, examples of work and comments will only appear if you have given permission. No child’s name will be attached to a photo.

Posts will tell you about recent activities in Nursery, often with photos and comments from the children. We hope to add new posts regularly and would greatly appreciate your comments to share with the children.

How do I add a comment?

To add a comment, simply click on the word “comments” below the title of the post e.g. “Annan Museum Visit”. This will allow you to read previous comments and you can use the box at the bottom of the page to add your comment. Once you have typed in your own comment simply click on “Submit”.

Comments do not appear instantly as they are monitored before being published but should be on the blog within a day or two. Only comments which may cause offence or jeopardise children’s privacy and safety will be blocked.
