

Hello from Home!

It is still a strange thing working from home when your job should involve teaching/ working directly with children. But we are all here ready to support you as best we can, if you need us.

Our new school mobile sits next to my (ancient but functioning) computer and is switched on Monday- Friday from 9am until 3pm.

07394 528 058 Please call if you need to talk about anything school related or if you fancy a natter.

Today we had a catch up with Miss Stapleton's class and we'll work our way up the school this week. We just want to make sure that you are well . We are not chasing home learning. You are doing what works for you and your family!

Did You Know?

We started the school blog in 2012.
It took 8 years to use 1GB of data storage.
It took 5 weeks to reach 2GB of data storage.
Keep up the great blogging!

Home Learning Feedback

It is good to hear that the learning grids we put up on a Monday are working for some families. You told us you like the choice of learning activities; you like that the main grids go up on Monday and let you get organised for the week. Plenty to choose from.

Some families are having Big Friday because it fits better with home and work—good to know!

Maths gets a change of pace when Miss Pattie and Mrs Jardine put up their practical maths lessons for a Friday.

Mrs Jardine's Big Book Blether has got us chatting about books on the blog.

And... Mrs Queen, Mrs Madden and Mrs Nyondo are enjoying looking for fresh craft ideas for a Friday - Mrs Nyondo sent me a film of the birds flocking to her natural big feeder at the weekend. Just what your garden needs!

Of course, we have many families who are going their own way with booklets, textbooks and WWII projects (75th anniversary of VE day on Friday—Stay at Home Street Party?!) - if it works for you, it is the right choice.

RESOURCES: Do you need new jotters? Card? Blank paper? Email us and we'll get it organised next week.

Please get in touch if things are not working and we'll try to help (we know that distance does make it harder).

Please blog about any learning activities you are doing—indoors or out. The whole team - pupils, staff and parents really enjoy catching up with you through the blog.

Free School Meals

Mrs Jardine has emailed you out updated information about free school meals.

Please make sure you are getting the help you need.
