

Read Around the World Challenge!

Although we can't travel at the moment, we can escape to lots of far-off places with the help of books! This term, we are going to be taking part in a whole school reading challenge to see how many books we can read from different countries around the world.

You can track your journey on the world map below as you read books representing different countries. You can read any genre or format with a connection to the country including picture books, chapter books, graphic novels, information books, magazines, newspapers or ebooks.

There are lots of different types of texts to choose from including nonfiction books, folktales, cookbooks, books created by an author or illustrator from the country, or stories that takes place in the country.

Blog about it!

Once you have read something for the challenge, let us know on the blog with the heading "Read Around the World". Post a picture of what you have read, along with a book review, character description, story map or something else that tells us a little bit about it.

If you are learning at home we will print off your blog post and add it to our "Read Around the World" display in the hall.

Check the BIG READ page on the blog every Friday for Read Around the World updates and recommendations!
