

Music-

This week is going to be your last week working on Music so I would like you think back to all of the songs and genres we have explored...

Your task is to choose either a genre or specific song to write a music review about. A music review is similar to a book review which some of you may have done before.

Here is a template which you might want to use for your music review. I have completed it for one of my favourite songs that we have listened to.

My music review

Name of song- Le Freak

Name of artist- CHIC

Genre- Disco

What I liked about this song and why? I love the catchy beat in this song. It makes me want to get up and dance. It also reminds me of fun times with my friends.

What I didn't like about this song and why? I think the ending is a bit too repetitive. It could have more of a snappy ending instead of repeating and fading out.

Who would I recommend this song to and why? I would recommend this song to my friends and family because it is a feel- good song that will put a smile on their faces.

This song makes me feel... excited, energetic, happy, playful.

I can hear these instruments in the song... drums, electric guitar, keyboard and bass guitar.

Does this song get stuck in my head? Yes/ No? Yes definitely, I will be singing it all day!

How many stars out of 5 would I give this song? I would give this song 4/5 stars.

There is a separate document on the learning pages which has links to all of the genres and songs we have listened to during our Music block. Use this to remind yourselves of them and to help choose which you want to write a review on.

BONUS WORLD BOOK DAY ACTIVITY- Lots of our favourite books have been made into films- for example "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory", "Matilda" "Harry Potter series", "Mary Poppins" and "Where the Wild Things Are". The music and songs that we hear in films are called the Soundtrack or the Score. Think of your favourite books which have been turned into films. Can you find and listen to their soundtracks? Share them with us on the blog! Here a few of my favourites to get you started...

Big Thursday Outdoor Learning 4th March 2021

World Book Day Special!

We are going to make our own books that tell us what we love about the outdoors.

1. Make your book shape with 1 piece of paper. Here is a suggestion, or you can make a zigzag book.

2. Front cover – Your title is “Outside.” You need to write the name of the author and illustrator (YOU!).
3. Back cover – blurb. A short piece of writing to say what the book is about...and entice us to read it.
4. Fill the pages! (If you have done the origami pamphlet version in the diagram above you should have 6 pages to fill.) Here are suggestions:
 - Rubbings – what can you find outside with a texture that you think is interesting? Put it under the paper, then use a crayon (or a mud-covered finger!) to rub across the surface. Label your rubbing.
 - Take a photo(s) of things you find interesting/exciting outside. Stick in your book and describe it.
 - Draw your favourite place to go outside. Take your time so we can really see why you love it.

- Write a poem about your favourite place to go outside. It could be an acrostic poem, a senses poem, or fill your page with words that describe the place. It could be the forest, the school playground, your garden... Remember a title. Here's an example:

BEACH

Beneath the dazzling sun

Essentials are sunscreen and sunhat

Activities are fun, swimming and making sandcastles

Crabs scuttle to keep cool under the Hot sand

- On one page of your book, make an abstract picture using pigments from outside. You can find different colour soils or leaves (grass and moss are good). Sometimes you might find charcoal. Best to use leaves that are already dropped from a plant, but remember to check with a grown up first in case it is poisonous. Here's my example:

- Find something interesting outside. Write a riddle for us so we can guess what it is. You can write the answer upside down at the bottom of the page.

Riddle – What am I?

I have white petals. I come out while it is still Winter, almost Spring. My name is a compound word. I am as tall as your ankle.

- Share your book on the blog!

Art – World Book Day

Option 1

It's making day! If you designed a World Book Day costume last week, today is the day to bring your designs to life. Remember, you don't have to design a full costume if you don't want to. You could make a mask, a hat, a set of wings...anything that represents your chosen character.

Option 2

This time last year we were working on our illustration skills in Art – can you believe that was a whole year ago?!? Today we are going to revisit this topic and do some illustrations from our favourite books. You can either recreate an illustration or do your own drawing in the same style as the illustrator.
