LOCAL HEROS

The Stewarton ultrarunners are a group of 8 people who are into running. Big time. They take part in ultramarathons, any race which is longer than a normal marathon (26.2miles). The lockdown has meant that lots of us have had to give up our sports, like football , netball and so on, because the clubs have stopped and we are not allowed to meet together. For runners, all the events have been cancelled, but they have still been allowed to go out for a run. At the start of lockdown this was restricted to one run per day, from the front door. As you can imagine, as people who are used to spending a lot of time running long distances, the Stewarton ultrarunners had to think of some other things to do. They were doing their own ultra version of Joe Wicks as well as a long relay (strictly following the rules of no contact and social distancing, and running from the front door) which ended up being 100miles (round and round Stewarton). And then there was that video. The embroil run spies. What video you say? The runners were looking for a way to have fun while stuck at home and so came up with a spy-movie type sketch based on running. In order to stick to social distancing regulations they were each given a script by pro-video editor and ultra-runner Gordon and given the task of recording their own parts from home. None of them had actually seen the whole script and they didn't know how their part was going to fit with the rest. The team all individually recorded their parts with their iphones and sent them to Gordon who stitched them all together. The end result is a funny trailer type clip and you can view it here:

It just shows you what a few people with their iphones can come up with when stuck in lockdown. We're looking forward to episode 2. Meanwhile, maybe some of you might be inspired to produce a lockdown movie?
