

December 1933

Daily Mail commissions Marmaduke Wetherell to catch the monster.

twinkl.com

1996

Fishermen spot two humps and a tail in the water.

twinkl.com

2019

Eighteen sightings of Nessie are reported throughout the year.

twinkl.com

1999

A couple sees what they think is a tyre floating in the water. It appears to be about 3ft long and 1ft tall.

twinkl.com

2020

A local man catches a sighting, which, some days later, is recorded in the newspaper The Sun.

twinkl.com

July 1933

A couple driving by Loch Ness reports seeing a dragon-like creature walking in front of them and disappearing into the water.

twinkl.com

1997

A man on holiday sees a black hump appearing in the water near the jetty at Fort Augustus.

twinkl.com

1520

Nicholas Witchell reports seeing the monster. It is recorded in the book The Loch Ness Story.

twinkl.com

1852

Inverness Courier reports a sighting.

twinkl.com

1694

R. Franck publishes his account of the monster in the book Loch Ness Mystery Solved.

twinkl.com

September 2019

BBC reports that the Loch Ness monster could be a giant eel.

twinkl.com

July 1934

The Edward Mountain Expedition starts a search for the monster around the lake.

twinkl.com

2011

A boat captain, named Marcus Atkinson, captures a sonar image of an unidentified object following his boat.

twinkl.com

1994

Surgeon's photo is declared as a hoax.

twinkl.com

1951

A local man, who lives by the Loch, sees three humps in the water in a line. He captures a picture of them and his photo is widely shared.

twinkl.com

2007

A lab technician takes a video of a 46ft 'black thing moving through the water'. This is shown on STV.

twinkl.com

AD 565

Saint Columba records the first sighting of the monster.

twinkl.com

1934

Doctor Robert Kenneth Wilson takes a photograph of the monster, which is known as the 'surgeon's photograph'.

twinkl.com

1975

Four firemen build a lady monster from papier-mache to attract the monster and prove its existence.

twinkl.com

1962

Loch Ness Phenomena Investigation is launched.

twinkl.com