ESPRESSO

Settle down and read a fiction book for 15 minutes each day, just for the love of reading. Why not make it a “doppio” and double up to 30 minutes.

AMERICANO

Read a newspaper article of your choice. Take a note of any unusual or complex vocabulary and look it up in the dictionary, writing down the definitions.

CAPPUCCINO

Research the author of the book you are currently reading. Note down three interesting facts about them and display the information in any way you wish.

Caffe Latte

Create 5 challenging questions on the most recent chapter of your book that you have read. Let a friend or adult read the chapter and try to answer your questions.

Mocha

Create a comic strip to portray the plot of the last book/chapter that you read. Remember to include speech bubbles for any characters and a short text description under the images.

Macchiato

Write a book review for the book you have just finished reading. Remember to summarise what the story is about, explain what you liked about the book and what you didn't, as well as making a recommendation for others to read it.

Create a mind-map to show what you have learned from the book you are reading and add to it at the end of each chapter. Include details on characters, setting, plot and theme.
