David Cameron has decided to hold a vote on June 23rd 2016 on whether the UK should remain in the European Union.

A referendum was also held in 1975 to see whether Britain wanted to remain in the EU.

The majority of Britain, at that time, wanted to remain in the union. David Cameron also thought Britain should stay in, however, in 2013 he changed his mind.

Everyone in Britain over 18 will be able to vote. However you must register if you want to vote.

If you register you will get a card through your door telling you where to vote.

As each day comes the vote is getting closer and closer to the deadline.

Finlay added: I think this vote will be very even because Gibraltar still have to vote.
