

Giffnock Nursery and Primary celebrates Show Racism the Red Card Wear Something Red Day is on Friday 5th October 2018

At Giffnock Nursery and Primary we all support inclusion and diversity. As part of our school ethos we participate in many events which highlight the school values and our ongoing commitment to inclusion and diversity.

On Friday 5th October 2018 we again invite you and your family to participate in raising awareness of anti-racism by wearing something red for Wear it Red Day for Show Racism the Red Card. This could be red socks, a scarf, trousers or even our polo shirt!

Across the week classes will use various materials linked to awareness raising and on Friday 5th October 2018 we will celebrate the importance of this by wearing red clothing.

The theme for the event is: Inspirational people from the anti-racism movement. The 15th January 2019 marks the 100th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther King, just one of many inspirational people who have championed the cause of anti-racism. Pupils will hear stories and will take part in various activities, including Art, Literacy and Drama, to encourage discussion on this theme.

Should you wish to make a small donation to the charity please put in an envelope and send into the school office.
