

Recycling

What happens to the clothes we no longer want?

FOOTBALL SHIRTS

What are the pictures of?

- How are the pictures similar ?
- How are the pictures different ?
- Do you think the boys might be friends?
- Do you think they go to the same school or play in the same team?

Now looking at the background of each boy
What do you think ?

How does a boy in Kenya happen to be wearing a Derby football club shirt?

- We are going to look at the route this shirt takes from UK to Kenya

recycling

A boy lives in the UK. He decides he no longer wants this football shirt, as he has the new season's shirt to wear.

recycling

- He sorts out some other clothes and shoes he no longer needs. He has grown too big for some, some are worn out and some he doesn't like anymore.

recycling

- He decides to recycle the old clothes and shoes. He could put them in a special bag outside his house for collection, take
- them to a clothes bank or take them to a local charity shop.

What happens next?

www.lmb.co.uk/virtualtour

When the recycled clothes get to their destination

Jobs for the local community are created. The clothes are sold on to local market stall holders and then sold on to the public. The advantage of this is the charity makes some profit, the market stall holders make a living and the local population can buy a good quality clothing at a fair price.

Even Williamwood High uniforms are recycled in Malawia

Who benefits from your old clothing

recycling

- Can you now understand how a the boy in Kenya is wearing a Derby football shirt?

