

Grammar - Suffixes

A suffix is a word ending.

The suffix ed tells us that an action has happened in the past.

I smasheded the plate.

The suffix ing is used with the verb "to be" to tell us that an action is in the present tense or the past tense.

I am throwinging the ball.

I was throwinging the ball.

The suffix er makes a new word.

Lots of these new words are comparative adjectives, comparative adverbs or nouns.

One lady was calmerer than the other one.

Hint: comparative adverbs and comparative adjectives are used to compare things.

When we add ed, ing, or er to words, we sometimes have to double the last letter.

We usually double the last letter if the one before it is a single vowel.

Section 2

Add the suffix "ed", "ing" or "er" to complete each sentence.

1. The ice cream is big___ than that one.
2. The pirates were look___ for the treasure.
3. We search___ and search___ but we could not find it.
4. The run___ who was first received the medal.
5. Cook_____ is one of my hobbies.
6. The long_____ you take to get ready, the less time we will have for fishing.

Hint: remember, you may need to double the last letter of the root word.

Section 3

Use the suffix "ing" to change these sentences into the present tense.

1. The birds circled overhead.
2. A stranger moved into the village.
3. The garage door creaked in the wind.
- 4 I tried hard with my fractions.

Hint: find the verb ending in "ed". Use the verb "to be" and an "ing" word in its place.

Section 4

Use the suffix "ed" to change these sentences into the past tense.

1. We were wondering if our decision was the right one.
2. I am posting a letter to my friend.
3. They are electing the team captain.
4. We are sailing into the harbour.

Hint: find the two words that make up the present tense verb. Use one word with "ed" instead.
