too

AND

two

To, too and two are homophones.

Homophones sound the same but they have different meanings.

Let's start with two. That means the number 2.

We spell two with a silent w! Practise the spelling by writing two at least 8 times. Can you do it without looking at the spelling?

two	two	two	two	two
two	two	two	two	two

Now let's think about too. Too can mean as well (I am coming too), BUT it can also mean extremely (It is too hot).

Read these sentences and think carefully. Underline too in blue if it means as well, but underline too in green if it means extremely.

1. Sam is too tired to go out and play.
2. I think I will have some crisps too.
3. There are too many toys in my bedroom!
4. This is far too easy for me!
5. Abby is having her party on Sunday too.
6. Too much ice-cream is usually a bad idea.

And now for to . You can use to to show direction (I am going to the park). You can also use it before a verb (I want to sleep in that bed).

Read these sentences and think carefully. Underline to in blue if it shows direction, but underline to in green if it comes right before a verb.

7. The dragon flew down to the castle.
8. You just need to stop yelling for one second!
9. When are you going to Tom's house?
10. He skated up to the wall at top speed and crashed right into it.
11. I have to tell Santa that I've been really, really good this year.
12. I want to do a crazy dance with my cat in the moonlight!

CHALLENGE

Read each sentence and think carefully about which word should go in each blank space: to, too or two?
