

Falkirk Council is taking part in a 2-year trial of Principles into Practice with support from ARC Scotland and the Scottish Government

Principles into Practice is about improving the experiences of young people with additional support needs as they make the transition from school to young adult life.

What will the Principles into Practice trial do?

- LOOK It will look at existing ways of working, to see what is working well and what could be better.
- LISTEN It will listen to what young people, parents and carers are saying about their experiences, and the support they need.
- LEARN It will share ideas and experiences so everyone across Scotland can learn from each other, and change things for the better.

What is involved?

Schools and services, in and around Falkirk, will work with some young people with additional support needs, and their parents and carers, to test new resources and ways of working.

We will collect feedback on what works and what doesn't, so we can improve things.

At the end of the trial, Principles into Practice will be a fully developed and tested framework, that will be freely available to every local authority and other organisations in Scotland.

How can you help now?

If you have a young person in S3 – S6, we would really appreciate it if you would consider completing a short survey, here: <https://forms.office.com/r/WKxgFc6HBK>.

This survey will close on 18th June 2021.

Your views will help us shape what we do.

Principles into Practice is based on the seven Principles of Good Transitions.

The Principles are published by ARC Scotland and endorsed by the Scottish Government. They make it easy for everyone to see what organisations should be doing to make sure young people with additional support needs have a good experience of leaving school and moving on to adult life.

The Seven Principles of Good Transitions

-  1 Planning and decision making should be carried out in a person-centred way
-  2 Support should be co-ordinated across all services
-  3 Planning should start early and continue up to age 25
-  4 All young people should get the support they need
-  5 Young people, parents and carers must have access to the information they need
-  6 Families and carers need support
-  7 A continued focus on transitions across Scotland
