Guide to using this resource:

These resources are intended only as a guide for practitioners. These resources are open to interpretation by the user, who is expected to use their own professional judgement and knowledge of their learners. The questions provided are open to allow their use across a wide range of stories and experiences and are intended only as a supporting resource. Not all points need to be discussed and are only included to provide a range of ideas. Some questions or examples will not be suitable and should not be used in specific contexts. The needs of the individual learners should always guide the practitioner in which questions and themes to explore and which examples to discuss. The practitioner should plan which themes they intend to explore with the children when selecting the story that the resource will be used with, and should consider the safety and needs of the learners before beginning the story.
