

You and your brother are at the ice cream van. It's a sunny, hot day. You both really want an ice cream, but you only have enough money for one.

What do you do?

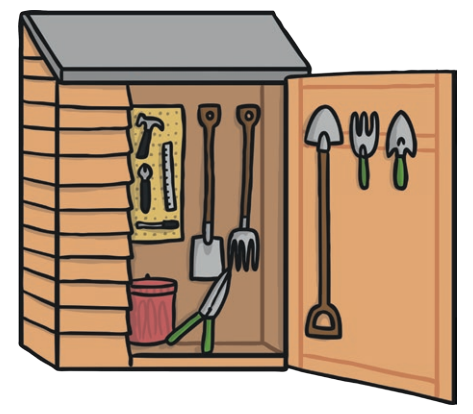

The postman arrives at the door with two letters for you. One is an invitation to the birthday party of a friend from school. The other one is an invite to the birthday party of a friend from football. They are on the same day.

Which one do you go to?

You have homework to do. It's due to be handed in tomorrow. When you get home from school, your Dad tells you that he needs your help to clean your grandfather's shed out and it will take all night.

What do you do?

It is almost Christmas. There is a new video game out and everyone at school is playing it but your Mum would really like a nice necklace for Christmas. You can only afford to buy one.

What do you do?

On Saturday mornings, there is a local football training club looking for new players and a local rugby club looking for new players. Tom, your friend from up the street goes to football. Rob, your friend from school goes to rugby.

Which club will you join?

After dinner your parents say you can have half an hour to relax. You can either watch T.V. or play on the computer. Dad normally watches the news but he's happy to miss it tonight. Your brother uses the computer to do his homework but he'll wait until you're finished

Which do you pick?

You have a bag of sweets. Your friends have none. There are lots of you playing together. If you share, you'll hardly get any. If you don't share, people will think you're greedy.

What do you do?

Your sister wants to borrow one of your favourite toys. You know she can be very careless but she would really like a turn with it.

What do you do?

You have waited in the queue for the swings for ages! Then someone cuts in front of you in the line.

What do you do?

While out on a bike ride, your friend gets a flat tyre. You know you have a repair kit at home but your friend doesn't want you to leave them on their own.

What do you do?

Your neighbour has spent a lot of time working on their garden. They have a great vegetable patch and lots of flowers.

Yesterday, you saw a friend from school kicking the heads off the flowers in your neighbour's garden.

What do you do?

