MUSIPEDIA

This is a fantastic online resource. All levels of the Music course from N3-Advanced Higher are catered for. There are concept lists, definitions and links to audio and video examples. The website is styled to look like Wikipedia and is very easy to use.

SQA WEBSITE

Here you will find course information, past papers and marking schemes. You should try these once you are confident with the definitions of the concepts and literacy content of your course.

You can search for and listen to music of all styles and genres on sites like:

Spotify Youtube SoundCloud iTunes

The more you listen, the more you'll understand and be able to identify. Remember that listening and hearing are not the same thing. Listening is an active activity whereas hearing is something you do passively.
