

Children don't learn to talk by accident - they need adults to nurture and support their language and communication. The more adults know and understand about language and how it develops, the easier it is for them to help children improve their talking, understanding and listening skills.

A lot of language development happens between ages 0-5, but the following top tips apply to children and young people of all ages.

1. Get their attention

listen. Say their name first to get are listening.

biscuit

2. Vocabulary is key

6. Show them the right way

If children make mistakes, its best to repeat back what they say rather than tell them it's wrong. Say it clearly with the right words, so they can hear how things should sound. Children learn from what they see and hear.

7. Make learning language fun

Keep healthu

We already

3. Build on what they say

Build on what children know and say already, to support them develop language to go to the next level; for example, taking turns with babies, adding words for toddlers, adding phrases for older children and showing teens how to debate.

8. Give children time

Children need time to process what others have said, work out what they are going to say and how they are going to say it. Use facial expression to show you are listening and happy

4. Talk about what children are interested in

Sheets rforated

> Children and young people are much more motivated to talk when it is about something they are interested in. Ask an open question where the answer is not only yes or no about a favourite hobby, for example.

For further information and advice on how to develop children's communication skills please go to www.hello.org.uk

Hello is the 2011 national year of communication – a campaign to increase understanding of how important it is for all children and young people to develop good communication skills.

Hello aims to make 2011 the year when communication for children and young people becomes a priority in homes and schools across the country.

Visit www.hello.org.uk to find out more about the campaign, sign up for regular updates and order further copies of this leaflet.

Hello is managed by The Communication Trust in partnership with the Government's Communication Champion.

Published January 2011

9. Check out understanding

Hello, can I take telephone number?

your name and

10. Have conversations

