

Tasks that require Executive Functioning.

At home

getting dressed

self care

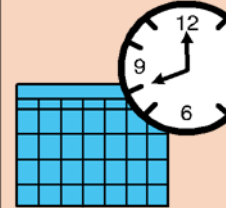

following recipes

cooking

remembering where keys are

remembering appointments

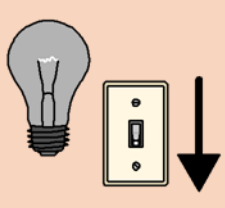

packing

completing housework

remembering to lock doors remembering to turn off electrics remembering to put food in the oven putting food in the correct storage.

remembering birthdays

something else

organising and paying bills

saving and spending appropriately

remembering to eat and drink

choosing clothes

saving and spending appropriately

starting housework

Tasks that require Executive Functioning.

At school

being on time

having appropriate resources completing homework on time going to the right classroom remembering rules

recalling staff and pupil names preparing resources

paying attention

remembering previous learning moving between tasks

following instructions

appropriate layout of work

re-call facts

remember to eat/drink/go to the toilet block out unnecessary sensory input focus on task

sequence tasks

start task

complete task

time management

something else

Tasks that require Executive Functioning.

In society

going shopping

remembering what is needed

following road safety

using transport

remembering where keys are

preparing for weather

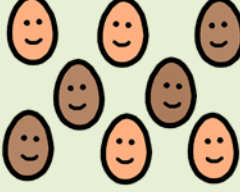

socialising

working with money

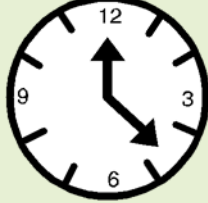

keeping a job

being aware of others

remembering belongings

time management

knowing appropriate engagement with others

something else

recognising people

recognising dangers

remembering to eat and drink

making choices

placing orders

new experiences