

Laughing at me or laughing with me.

It can be difficult to recognise when someone wants to be my Sometimes friends can laugh together at things they find funny.

Sometimes people laugh at other people to make fun of them.

This is not being friends.

This is called 'taking advantage of others'.

Being Friends

Taking Advantage

Encourage and support to make a good decision.

Encourage someone to do something that will get them into trouble.

Setting healthy boundaries.

Ignoring someone's boundaries.

Laugh and joke with someone.

Encourage someone to do something that makes them look silly.

Helping out.

Taking and not returning things from someone.
