Falkirk Children's Rights Service

When something is called a right, it means that nobody can take it away from you, it is yours, and is meant to protect you and help you have a good life. Your children's rights service will support you to make sure that your rights are respected. But remember, other people have rights, and these should also be respected.

What is a right?

Advocacy is a way of helping you to have your say on decisions that affect you. Falkirk Children's Rights Service is an independent service which offers support to enable you to express your views and to make your own informed decisions. We are here to provide you with the knowledge, confidence and support you need to influence the decisions which affect your life.

We are an independent service which provides advocacy and support to all care experienced children and young people and those affected by a disability or additional support needs. We are a small team consisting of a Children's Rights Officer, Information and Advocacy Officer and a Children and Young Person's Participation Worker. The role of the team is to advocate and represent your views and opinions.

Who we are

What is advocacy?

What we do

- provide you with information on rights and responsibilities
- support you to present your views at meetings such as children's hearings, looked after reviews or other meetings
- we listen to what you say and take it seriously and help you have your say about things that affect you
- help put a stop to things that should not happen
- make sure that those caring for you listen to what you have to say
- put you in touch with other people who can give you help and advice
- we also promote children's rights to other service who work with children and young people.
- encourage and empower you to contribute to the improvement of services by supporting your participation or support in Falkirk's Champions Board
