

How does Nanuck feel at the start of his adventure? What tells you that his feelings will change? Circle evidence in the text to support your answer.

No-one had warned us that the boat taking us to the start of our adventure would heave up and down. That, combined with a huge dollop of excitement and nerves at what might lie ahead, made my stomach lurch with every ocean wave.

It had all started so well. As the masters came to take us to the boat, my parents were bursting with pride. It was me, Nanuck, of the Greenland husky clan who'd been hand-picked by a world-famous explorer to take part in this daring endeavour!

Feedback