Numeracy and Mathematics – Packed Lunches

In this activity, you are going to plan 'back-to-school' packed lunches. There needs to be enough food to have 5 lunches. Each lunch should include a filled sandwich/roll or wrap, a drink, a piece of fruit and at least 2 other snacks.

Use the table to compare costs and work out what you would like to buy for each of the 5 lunches using a £12 budget. Remember that some of the items are 'on offer'. Write down what you will buy, how much it will cost and if you have any change/money left. Write out a menu for the 5 lunches.

If you only have time to visit one shop, which of the shops will give you the best value for your money? Use this table to price the items in each of the shops which you have chosen to buy above. Remember to think about the amount of portions that each item will provide. Remember to make sure you stay within the £12 budget.

Discuss with an adult which shop you would choose to buy your items from. Share your shopping list with the adult and talk about how much of your budget you spent. Explain why you chose to buy things in certain shops

The Diary of a £5 Note

By Vishal S (Winner of GOLD award Age 10-13 category)

DAY 1

Born today! But why am I here?

All I know: I emerged from this machine, which printed two UGLY images on me. On one side, a rather fancy-looking woman and on the other a stern, grumpy, balding man. NOT the look I would have chosen...

DAY 3

Today, I was inside another machine. Met loads of other notes just like me. Discovered they call us fivers! Loved it. Cosy, warm and friendly!

But next second, I get shoved out of a tiny slot into the cold.

Some grubby hands stuff me in a pouch... Now it's just me and a £50 note - thinks he's 10 times better than me... Hope I'm out of here soon...

DAY 63

Still here.

Bored... Been in this same wallet for weeks now. Nothing ever happens except the £50 bragging. Then some coins dropped on my head. Ouch.

I'm getting really claustrophobic now.

Also, I started wondering about the meaning of my life...

DAY 102

Been put in an old, rusty tray. But I have my own compartment with some other £5s. That's great. Made some new friends. We've got lots in common!

However, there's a weird scent of expired Kit Kats and Rolos...

DAY 103

Rude awakening today. There was a massive CRRRCHIIINGG and the tray was jerked out. A few of my buddies got swiped away.

Teaching and Learning
DAY 167

Edinburgh Learns @Home Week 4 Home Learning for Primary 7

Then CRRRCHIIINGG, again, the tray was slammed back in. Got a headache now...

Teaching and Learning

My latest wallet 'home' was snatched by a small, podgy child. She pulled me out, then twisted me, drooled on me and put me in her mouth and chewed me. Worst pain ever...EXCRUCIATING...

Fortunately, I'm made from the finest of thermoplastic polymers - my ego was more damaged than my edges.

DAY 248

Shocking day. This lady was rushing down the road and dropped me onto the horrible, grimy street floor. Lay there for hours... I got trodden on, rained on, and finally driven over by a 50 TONNE TRUCK. Cheers...

DAY 439 (AM)

Today, I got shoved into a suitcase with loads of my other friends. Saw a hooded man. He looked mean. Heard gunshots, screams and a very loud alarm.

Don't get what all the fuss and noise was for...

DAY 439 (PM)

Heard sirens. Then more gunshots. Suitcase was opened... looked up to see a friendly man with a shiny badge and stripes on his shoulder. Got transferred back into a machine like the one I started in.

Still don't get my life - why am I here?

DAY 3784

I've seen quite a lot over these years. But something different happened today.

My latest owner was strolling through a park, and stopped in front of an old man. His clothes were ragged. He was sat on a crumpled sleeping bag on the floor.

With desperation, he begged, "Any change mate?"

I was handed over.

The man started sobbing gently.

Week 4 Home Learning for Primary 7

He wept, "You just saved my life, mate."

My owner smiled.

Finally, I think I know why I'm here

Create your own Diary Of A.....

Think about the places your object is placed, what it is used for and how it might feel if it was a real living being!

You can use the diary structure of "Day 248" like Vishal S, or you can use the real date and time if you prefer ....

Vishal S wrote his story in 500 words... which is a good length for a short story. Try and aim for a similar length, between 300-500 words! Have fun!

Author Profile

Using the link to the Scottish Book Trust, choose one of the featured authors that you are interested in learning more about. Listen to their talk and make notes below.

What I learned from what I heard...
What I want to know now... My questions!

After you have done this, use your notes to start writing an Author Profile. Think about including the following headings:

Name of Author:

How long have they been writing for?

What books/texts have they written?

Edinburgh Learns @Home
Week 4 Home Learning for Primary 7

Who is the audience for their writing? e.g. young children, teenagers, etc...

What inspired them to write?

What things help them write/what is their writing process?

What is the author best known for?

Other Interesting Author facts?

Why are their books popular?

You can add other headings if you wish. You can also use your “what I want to know now” questions to do further research on your chosen author. Many authors have their own dedicated websites which host lots of interesting information. Ask an adult to help you find a suitable site to use. You can also illustrate your work with pictures and ideas taken from your chosen author’s stories. You may even want to draw a profile picture of your chosen author.

Thinking and Talking about My Learning - P6 and 7

	1	2	3	4	5	6
A	Were there any tasks today that I found too easy? Why? Could I have added my own challenge?	Were there any tasks today that I found too difficult? What made it difficult? Did I give up straight away or keep trying?	Did I estimate correctly how long each task would take? If not did I under estimate or overestimate?	Did I work through tasks in a specific order? Did I start with the easiest task, or the hardest, or the most interesting or the most fun?	Did I try going back to a tricky task later and reading it again? Did it make a difference?	Did any of yesterday's tasks make more sense today now that my brain has had time away from it?
B	Which parts of today's tasks used knowledge I felt confident about remembering?	Which tasks had new learning in them? What did I learn?	Thinking of one of my tasks. Did I understand the concept that I was working on?	Did I find it easy to stay on task today? What helped/hindered this? Is it different depending on the task?	Can I think of ways to improve my motivation for tomorrow?	Do I need to practise anything to make tomorrow's learning easier?
C	Did I have everything I needed to complete the tasks? Did I use anything to help me?	Did I get stuck? How did I get past that? Did I give up or try something else? What did I try?	What made my learning stick today? What did I do that helped me understand a particular task?	How can I make sure I remember what I learned? What have I done in the past that has worked?	How long do I think I will remember what I learned? How could I check next week, next month?	Am I unsure or muddled about anything after today's work? What can I do to become clearer or more sure?

Thinking about how you learn can help you learn more effectively.

At the end of a day of learning you might like to choose a row (A, B or C) and roll a die to select 2 or 3 questions to think about.

You can think about them by yourself or, even better, discuss them with someone else.
