

Orchard Parent's Workshop

Thursday 23rd November 6.00-8.30pm

Assembly Hall Clyde Valley Campus

This interactive workshop is like nothing available before in the UK. With children at the centre of the education system, parents are the next most powerful influence on their children's success. Schools of course offer direct help and support to children, but the missing link is often between schools and parents. Missing this is a major barrier in getting it right for every child, but getting it right can have life changing results! Supported by current and relevant science, covering topics such as creativity, motivation, communication and mindset, this program helps parents and carers to support their children's success in school, and for the school to effectively support parents to make this happen.

Learning Outcomes

- Parents are introduced to different approaches to aid their children at home
- Build awareness of Fixed and Growth mindset models
- How to identify and cope with changes in a child's confidence
- Exploring communication and how to approach working with children in different circumstances
- Parents will be asked for detailed feedback on how they can work better with the school to support their children
- Parents leave with a toolkit that helps continue their efforts to set a positive example and create a constructive environment for studying at home

Benefits

- Parents are motivated to use their existing skills to help their children
- Stronger working relationships between parent/child
- Stronger working relationships between parents/teachers
- Greater confidence for parents
