

L.I To write from a character's point of view

- I can use my prior knowledge of the character to think about what they might do, think or say
- I can write in the first person (I, my, me etc.)
- I can describe events in the story, adding in feelings and thought.

Imagine you were Grace and were stuck on the Island. Write a diary that Grace could have kept, which describes how she found ways to survive, and how she might have felt about it. Diaries usually start with Dear Diary. Remember to write as if you were Grace so you would write I...
