

High-Quality Experiences

The experience supports literacy skills naturally (talk, mark-making, vocabulary, exploring text)

The experience includes numeracy or mathematical thinking

There are opportunities for creativity and imagination

The experience promotes problem-solving, reasoning, and decision-making

The learning potential is open-ended, not task-driven

Cross-curricular learning happens authentically

There is appropriate challenge and progression in materials/resources

The experience reflects real-world contexts or meaningful purposes

Children stay engaged for sustained periods

Children can initiate ideas and lead play directions

The experience promotes collaboration, communication and negotiation

There is visible joy, absorption, and curiosity

The experience promotes the development of real life skills or dispositions

There are opportunities for technology to support or enhance learning

Possible Learning

Enhancement Suggestions