

Personal space is like an invisible bubble that surrounds you and makes you feel safe.

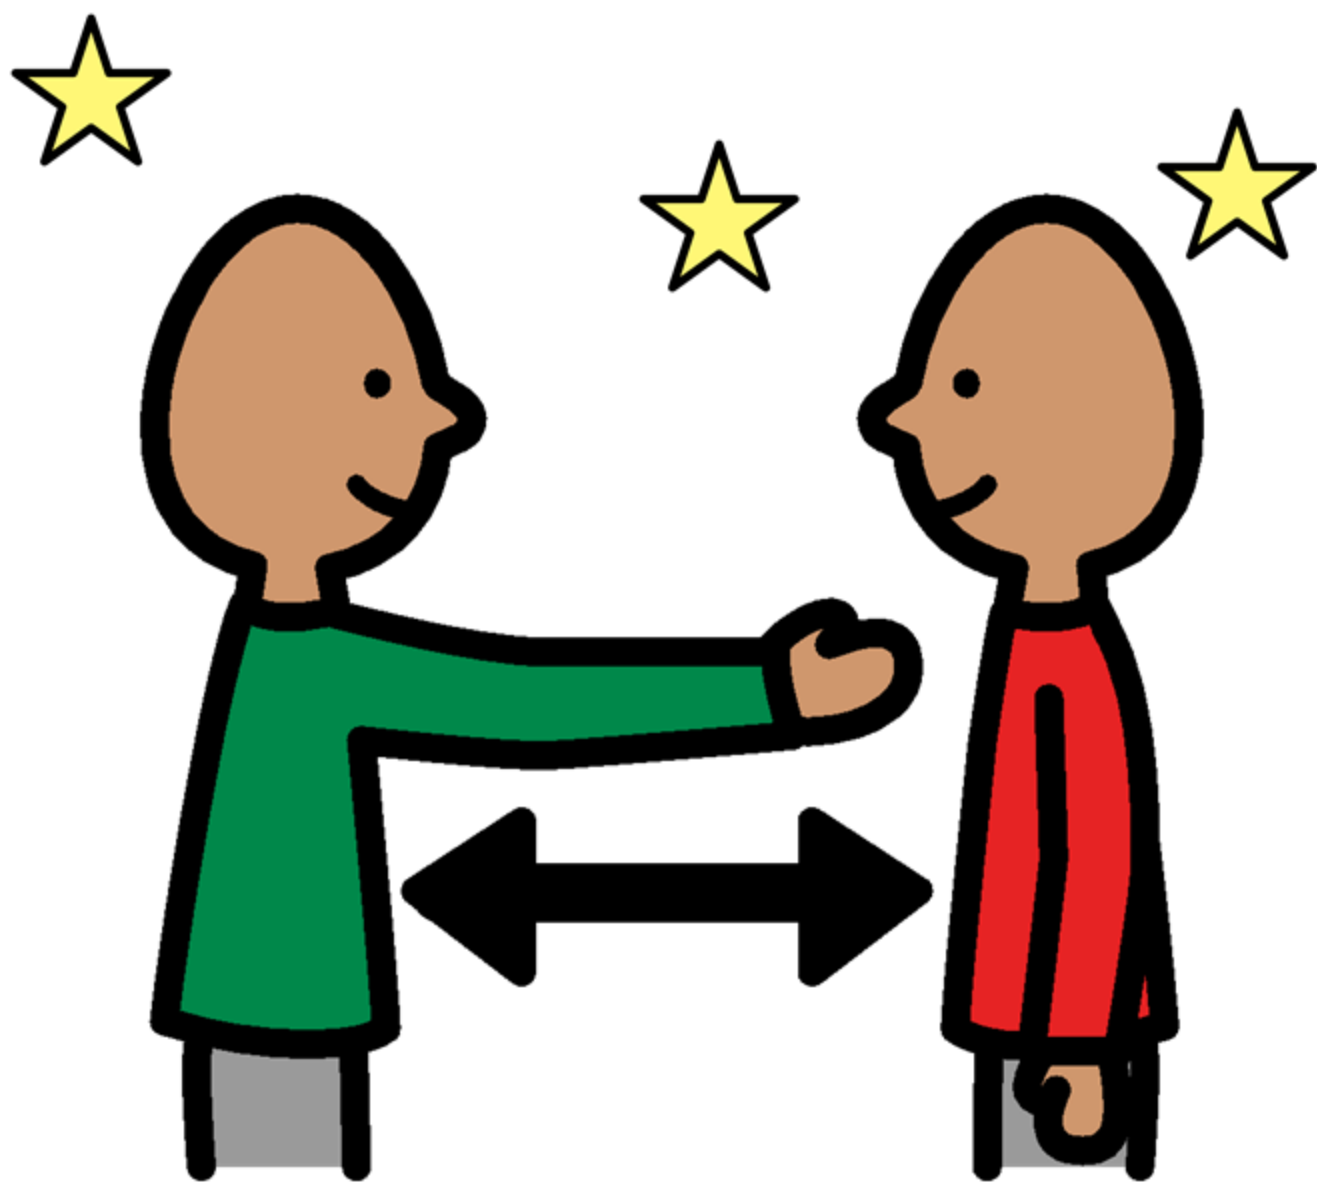

When I talk to people, I need to give them personal space and stay away from their faces.

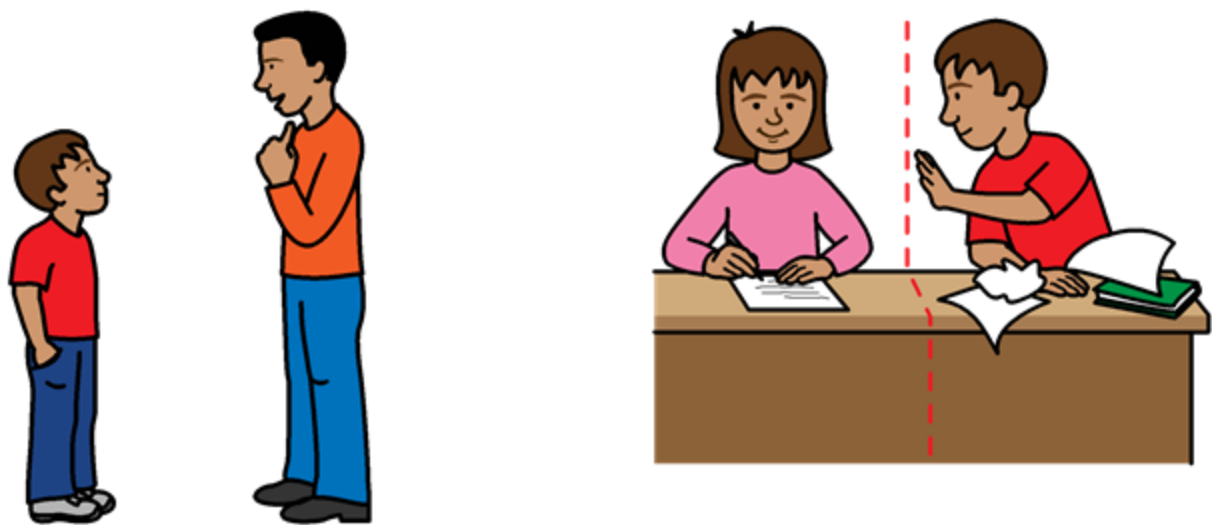

When people come too close it makes people feel uncomfortable.

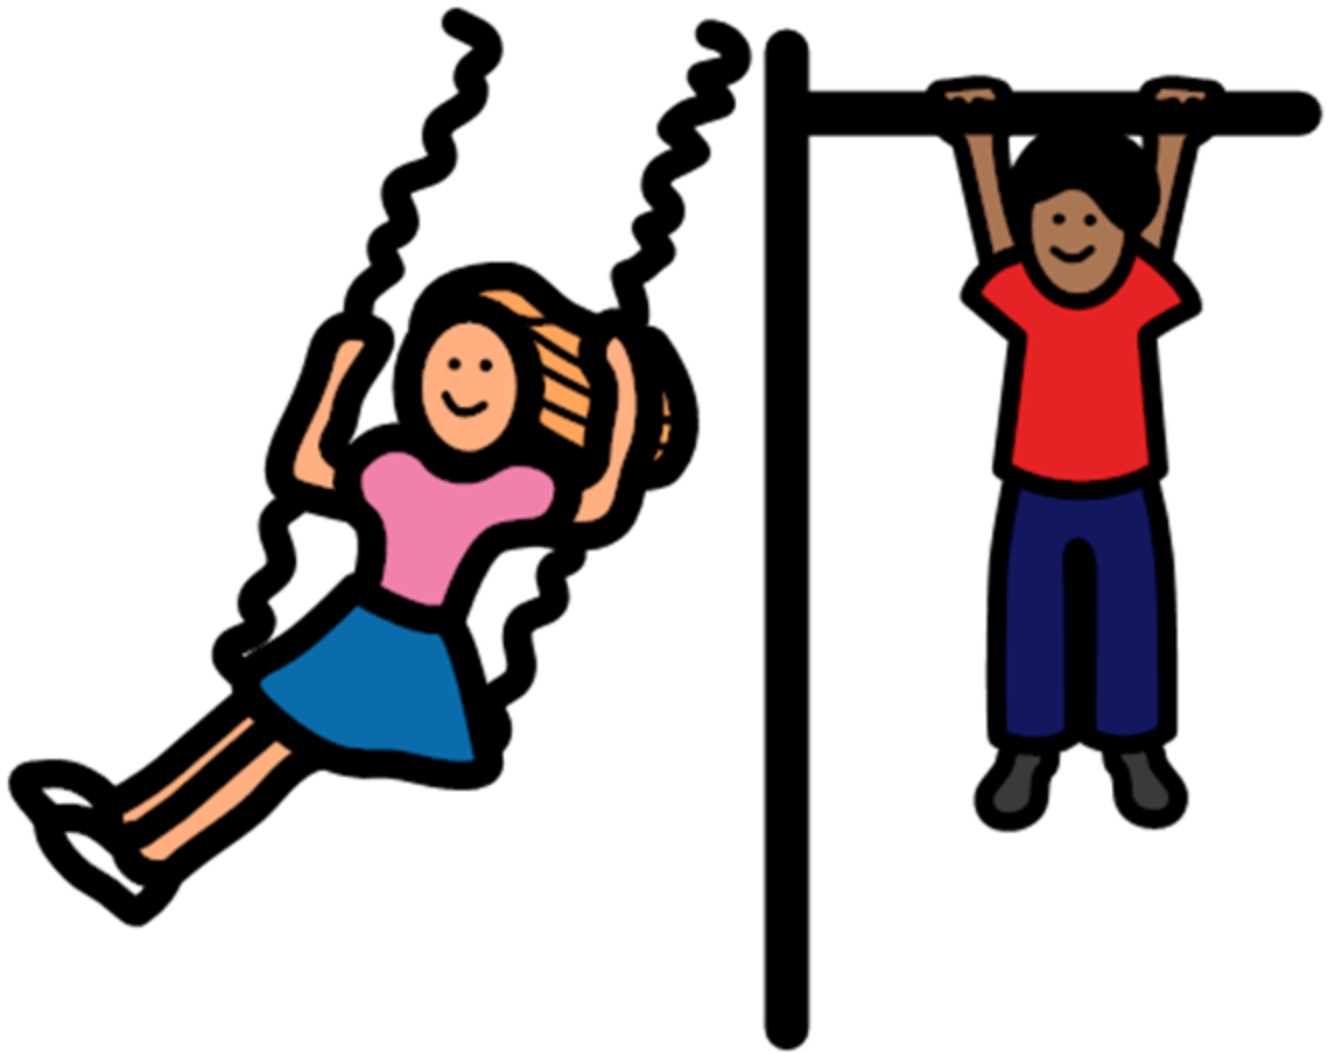

When I make people uncomfortable, they want to get away from me.

If I can stretch my arm out and can not touch someone with my fingers then we have enough personal space.

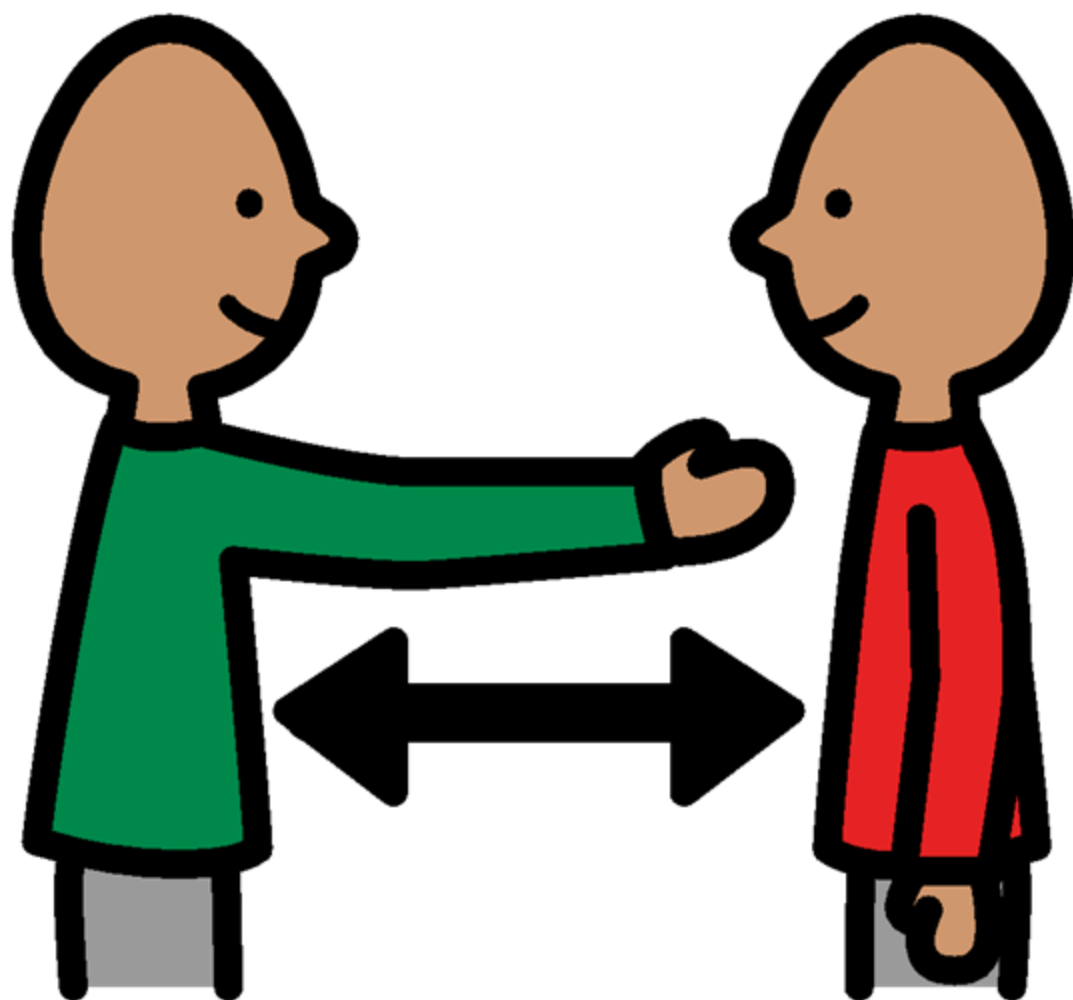

Everyone needs personal space. Adults need space, my friends need space and even animals need space.

play

When I give people enough personal space, I get to play with and talk to people.

Personal Space

Text goes here.

Text goes here.