Dear Parent/Carer,

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC TUITION

Our Percussion instrumental teacher, Andrew Horne, will soon begin the process of selecting pupils for inclusion in the school's instrumental music programme. Your child will have had an initial presentation from the instrumental music service about what instruments are available to learn. If you would like your child to take part in step 2 of the recruitment process, the instrumental music teacher(s) will carry out an informal musical aptitude and suitability assessment.

Playing a musical instrument is fun and along with the musical benefits, it develops self-esteem and confidence; improves concentration and discipline; enhances co-ordination, language, memory, and social skills and has a positive impact on health & wellbeing. It teaches pupils/young people how to work as part of a team and offers a wide range of opportunities and learning experiences which develop and prepare them for life beyond school.

If you would like to learn more about the benefits of how playing an instrument supports learning, watch this short video by Dr. Anita Collins:

Learning a musical instrument is open to pupils from primary 5 (strings only), primary 6 or S1 at high school (*depending on staff availability and resources) however, this will vary from school to school. As demand for instrumental lessons normally exceeds availability, it may not be possible to offer every pupil an instrument. If your child is successful, you will be informed by letter. However, if your child is unsuccessful, their name may be placed on a waiting list and should a place become available later in the academic year, they may be offered the opportunity to be included on the instrumental music programme (*depending on staff availability and resources).
