John Glenn

John Glenn was the first American astronaut to orbit Earth!

Who Is He and What Did He Do?

John Glenn was born in Ohio, USA, in 1921. As a child, he absolutely loved aeroplanes. He later became a combat pilot for the military after Pearl Harbour. John also served in the Korean War, then became a test pilot, helping to develop the F8U Crusader. John was one of the military test pilots chosen by NASA in 1959 to become part of the 'Mercury

Seven' - the first ever group of American astronauts.

What Were His Big Achievements?

John set a speed record in 1957, flying from LA to New York in less than $3\frac{1}{2}$ hours. He became the third US astronaut to have ever entered space. John spent 5 hours in space on board the 'Friendship 7' Mercury spacecraft and made three orbits around the Earth, becoming the first American to circle the Earth. John later became a US senator and served for 24 years, the longest-serving Ohio senator. He even ran for president. In 1998, when he was 77 years old, John boarded the 'Discovery' space shuttle and became the oldest person sent into space!

Did You Know?

NASA invited him to go into space again when he was 77 because they wanted to learn what space did to older people.

What Is He Remembered For?

John Glenn is remembered as one of the 'Mercury Seven'. He was known as a national hero after he became the first American to orbit the Earth in 1962. Millions of people greeted him with a big parade in New York when he returned. He was also given a service medal from the president at the time, John F. Kennedy. Columbus airport was recently renamed after him, as that was where one of his last public appearances was before he died in 2016, at 95 years old.
