My favourite memory

opening L.I. I can include an opening paragraph that sets the scene memories My favourite memory was when my little brother was born. I have lots of memories but this is one of my favourites.

On the 4th of June 2019 my little brother was born. He was very cute. I got to hold him. My mum was in a big hospital bed. I gave her a big hug. Soon after that my papa came and so did my grandma and grandad. Everyone there got to hold my brother. My mum named him Leo. Then the life of my little brother Leo went on.

I was very happy when Leo was born. I was really looking forward to having a little brother. It was very exciting! I was three and almost four.

Sophie's Dream Giver

One upon a time there was a dream giver. He has big black goggles with lime green wings with only some little green parts on. He gently opens the shutters before he smoothly glides into the orphanage. Quietly he pulls out a big shiny, glowing egg. 'CRACK' he opens them up it shines brightly. Starting to pour the gooey liquid on to a football because that's what the little boy wants to be. A smile appears on his face the little boy is so delighted to be dreaming he is in a blue and red stadium with really light green soft grass. Dancing in her dream, the dream giver gave her a dream that she was on a black stage on front of millions of people, watching as she dances in a shiny gold glittery dress with some shiny gold shoes, with her hair in a bun and a bow on top. Books with astronauts all round his bed, the dream giver makes one come alive. Going to give another child a dream a child moves and an egg drops on a horrifying book. Suddenly sparkles swirling round and round the astronaut settled in.

He woke up to find there were butterflies flying round him, the grass was soft and the trees was bright pink, the birds chirping it was enchanted. Tumbling round he saw skulls and bones everywhere he was horrified despite that he walked forward tripping his knees were knocking even so his hands were shaking to. A shadow appeared as he walked closer and closer to it, he looked up frightened he saw an ancient tower crash he fell on a brick. Eyes showed in the tower a monster ran out chasing him. Running fast through the dark woods he got to a cliff he stop to realise he is down for. About to get eaten (Boom) the Dream giver cracked a egg near its leg. Poots came and captured it. Suddenly it fell to the floor therefore it turned in the most beautiful tree ever, making up the child read the book. 'ZOOM!' the dream giver went out just to come back another day!
