Week Ending 7.5.20

Someone sent me this picture of mountains this week. I thought you might like it. What do you think it looks like?

LIFE IN LOCKDOWN

Hello Children, I hope you are all well and have had a lovely week. Two 4-day weeks in a row is not too bad.

I have absolutely loved reading your many posts and comments on Google Classroom. I can see everything you have been doing and it looks like lots of you have been having fun outside, being very creative and making the most of the time you are at home.

This week I have mostly been working from my office at home.

It has been fine and isn't as tidy as that anymore. I'm missing you coming to chat to me in my office at school and seeing you working in the open areas and in your classrooms. I am also missing the reminders I have from you on my walls at school.

On one of my walks this week I was back at Stirling Uni as I live nearby. There are now three swans' nests. I couldn't tell how many eggs as the mummy swans were all sitting on them. One day soon I'm sure I will be able to see some baby swans. Do you know what a baby swan is called??

I have the most amazing view from my living room window of the Wallace Monument. This week it has been lit up like a rainbow in appreciation of all the front-line workers. Doesn't it look fab!

I hope everyone enjoys the holiday

lots of love from

Mrs Kane 😊
