

The Story of 'ie' and -ch

The children in Ben's class at school were going into town for a visit to the fire station. They were going to have a chat with the fire chief. He was a happy chap and he was going to tell them about a firefighter's job and fire safety. They were then going to see all the things on a fire engine and how they worked. Ben and his friends were excited!

The children were going to walk into town. They had to walk past a large field. In the field lived a huge, fierce bull. They had to creep along the pavement so the bull would not hear them. They looked into the field to check if the bull was there. When they peered carefully, they could see it in the far away corner of the field.

Whilst he was watching the bull, Ben tripped over a bump in the pavement. He fell down and hit his chin. Ouch! Poor Ben!
